

Mixed Greens

Mixed greens are a grower's dream with their ability for dense planting and multi-cut harvesting. Grown for baby leaf mixes or for full-leaf bunching, greens add deep colors, flavor, and texture whether cooked or raw.

Darkibor

Curly Kale

Quintessential kale with dense, curly leaves with rich peppery flavor.

Endive

Beautiful incised leaves with nutty flavor. Slower growing, but less chance of tip burn.

Radish

Peppery flavor in both the root and the leaves! Tops make an interesting addition to salad mixes or soups

Rainbow

Swiss Chard

Bright, bold colored stems with rich green leaves and earthy flavor.

Red Leaf

Amaranth

Heart-shaped leaves with a blush of red in the center. Taste similar to spinach.

Red Russian

Heritage Kale

Large, flat leaves with ruffled edges and red veins. Light flavor and wonderful texture.

Red Sweet

Swiss Chard

Mild chard flavor with deep red stems and veins.

Scarlet

Curly Kale

Curly style, similar to Darkibor, with red leaf tips and veins. Wonderful cooked or raw!

Spinach

Traditional smooth leaves with deep color and rich green taste.

Asian Greens

Commonly stir-fried or used in soups, these tender leaves and crunchy stalks have made their way into grilled dishes and salad mixes. Their smooth, yet rich flavor adds a fresh and unique quality not found with other greens.
